Thank you for your interest in the Growing Futures in Arizona Agriculture course for Arizona K-12 teachers and administrators. Due to limited seating, you must apply and be accepted to participate in this program. You will be contacted by email as soon as you are accepted. This professional development training course is free for qualified educators.

This is an 8-week hybrid course with a mandatory in-person weekend immersive learning experience to be held at the conclusion of the 7-week online class. All expenses related to travel, lodging, and meals are included during the immersive agricultural experience.

The online portion of this course is asynchronous and fully online. Participants must have reliable internet service, an updated browser compatible with UArizona D2L Brightspace, and the ability to log in weekly.

Application deadline: ASAP: First come, first served!

1. Please describe your role at your institution:

2. Why do you want to participate in this class?

3. In what areas of agriculture are you most interested and why (i.e., plants, livestock, soils, water, etc.)

4. How do you plan to use the information that you learn from this class at your school or in your classroom?

5. Please describe your experience with, and general knowledge of, agriculture and agricultural concepts?

6. How did you hear about this professional development opportunity?

This professional development opportunity is to train teachers and administrators to bring agricultural concepts into their classroom and help to build the future agricultural workforce. At the conclusion of the online portion of class, there will be a mandatory immersive learning experience at local Arizona agricultural sites. To receive professional development credits/CEUs, participants must participate in the immersive learning experience. Milage, lodging, and meals will be covered during the immersive experience. Travel from Flagstaff to the Verde Valley will be by vans provided by UArizona Cooperative Extension.
